

Ventura Morningstar All Growth Model

vMAPs Model Profile | August 2017

Commentary

The increased tension surrounding North Korea was arguably the biggest influence on market sentiment in August, triggering a subtle flight to safety among financial markets. August was also no exception to the usual political deadlock, including further instability in the Trump administration and the ongoing Brexit 'va-et-vient' between the U.K. and E.U. negotiators.

Although volatility during the month was low, the above backdrop was slightly more favourable to safe-haven assets, as evidenced by a rise in gold prices (up 4% and hitting a 1-year high) and a slight outperformance of government bonds over equities in local currency terms. For sterling investors however, exposure to overseas assets not denominated in sterling was rewarded due to the weakness from the pound.

Among equities, emerging markets have now outperformed developed markets for an 8th month in a row, supported by strong Chinese and Brazilian equities. Conversely, in the developed world, Europe ex UK and Japan posted small negative returns for the month as a whole. At a sector level globally, the performance gap between technology and energy moved another 5% and is now an extraordinary 37% year-to-date (energy down 7.5% and technology up 29.5% year-to-date in US dollar terms).

Within fixed income, UK gilts were the best performer, with emerging market debt assets also benefiting. More broadly, developed world government debt outperformed corporate debt following a flight to safety and a reduced likelihood of interest rate rises in the short term in the developed world.

The earnings growth that has propelled markets in the last year has been driven by a narrow subset of the investment universe, being mostly attributable to profit margin expansion among financials and energy companies. This could easily prove to be cyclical and therefore a possible mean-reverting phenomenon.

Morningstar's disciplined investment approach delivers independent, cost effective and holistic solutions for our clients – helping them reach their financial goals. This long-term, valuation driven approach is underpinned by an emphasis on preserving capital and undertaking meticulous comprehensive fundamental analysis of global asset classes and securities.

Portfolio Construction Process

When building diversified portfolios to achieve long-term real returns (after fees and taxes), a dynamic approach to asset allocation improves the outcome for investors. A total-portfolio-perspective approach that seeks to adjust the portfolio when the reward for risk changes, and measures risk in a more meaningful way to preserve capital for investors, is expected to provide a more stable and improved path to wealth accumulation. This approach is often contrarian to market consensus with patience and discipline provides significant investment opportunities.

Security Selection

Buying shares of superior businesses and allowing them to compound over time is the surest way to create wealth in the stock market. The long-term fundamentals of businesses, such as cash flow, competition, economic cycles, and stewardship, are the primary focus because history has shown that market sentiment is fleeting, momentum can quickly reverse, and the herd is sometimes a dangerous crowd. Occasionally, this approach causes our investment models to appear out of step, but willingness to be contrarian is an important source of outperformance.
